Introduction of the OESO Platform of Esophagology

An International network of OESO certified Centers of Excellence in Esophagology (OCEE) in conjunction with the Stanford Multidimensional Program for Innovation and Research in Esophagology (S-MPIRE)

To take place at Stanford University, April 26, 2:00 – 5:00 pm

Frances C. Arrillaga Alumni Center
326 Galvez St. – Stanford, CA

You are one of those who have agreed to participate in the inter-university OESO – Stanford MPIRE Platform and, as such, to be the representative of a Pilot Center in Esophagology.

We are pleased to inform you that this major innovative project, built on the OESO network and under the auspices of UNESCO, is now in its final stage of implementation.

Indeed, after a first course organized at the University of Bordeaux (France), the official launch of the Platform is scheduled to take place at Stanford University on Thursday, April 26.

This meeting will assemble the representatives of the Pilot Centres to develop a general CME program based on the proposals previously expressed by each of them.

The operating conditions of our international network and the prospects of expansion will also be evaluated jointly, as well as the terms of a Charter that will have been proposed before the meeting.

To our knowledge, such a multi-disciplinary and global project has no equivalent.

The purpose of this preliminary message is to inform you of this important meeting, and ask if you will be able to participate.

Very sincerely yours,

George Triadafilopoulos
Executive Director,
Stanford – MPIRE

Xiaoxin (Luke) Chen
President,
OESO

Robert Giuli
Deputy Executive Director,
OESO

This meeting will be followed on Friday, April 27 by a course the program of which is attached to this invitation. We also include the Agreement which refers to the project accepted by the Pilot Centers, and we thank you to return it, completed and signed.
